

Everyday Icons by Bolia

Glasses, cutlery, carafes, trays and various accessories set the scene for life's simplest moments. As Bolia calls them, these Everyday Icons are designs that discreetly adorn every table, from Sunday breakfast to a casual lunch or formal and festive dinner set-ups.

Bolia has developed a collection of kitchen accessories that reflects its love of Scandinavia in the design language and durable choice of materials.

Rheolog is a series of carafes and glasses with an elegant design and durable quality, designed by Jüngerkuhn. The carafe's stainless steel creates a harmonious contrast with its soft, organic shapes. The glasses are simple in shape, made from mouth-blown, non-reflective glass with a slightly rounded edge. A classic yet modern series that will add a distinctive touch to special occasions.

Inspired by the rich traditions of Japanese minimalist design, Forma is a series of hand-crafted tableware designs that includes plates, bowls, mugs, serving platters, vases, a teapot and more. The durable speckled stoneware they are made of, gives them an elegant, organic expression that invites you to slow down and enjoy.

In a similar expression, the Let series is inspired by traditional spoons and spatulas with distinctive handcrafted details, where each shape is carefully studied to offer unique properties to each creation. The Let series is made from solid steam bended beech. The Pit salt and pepper mills, from the German designers BÖTTCHER & KAYSER, have a soft, natural and elegant expression. Their design is inspired by the traditional Japanese wooden dolls, "Kokeshi", in a Scandinavian interpretation.

Finally, the Carved series of handmade cutlery showcases traditional craftsmanship. The shaft is slightly twisted to provide a firm and comfortable grip, while the durable steel ensures the knife doesn't become blunt with use. Each design features both a glossy and matte finish on each side for an elegant and rounded finish.

Bolia's Everyday Icons create a welcoming and enveloping setting on any table that will make guests want to stay. But they are just as enjoyable during a meal in soothing solitude and will help create that little bubble of well-being and softness in the middle of our busy and beautiful everyday life.
