

New outdoor designs by Bolia

Made to last for years

For the release of their new Spring Collection, Bolia has significantly expanded their Outdoor Collection, which now holds designs in almost every category. With the new additions, it is possible to decorate a complete outdoor oasis with New Scandinavian Design.

Bolia has developed a collection of kitchen accessories that reflects its love of Scandinavia in the design language and durable choice of materials. The arrival of spring also announces the launch of four new outdoor pieces from Bolia – four outdoor pieces that have come to live through a reinterpretation of existing indoor versions.

With its refined proportions and details, the Track Outdoor table sets the scene for a dining area, on a patio or by the pool. Designed by Italian Studio Nooi, Track can be combined with a bench in the same series or the durable Seed chair for a light and consistent look. The Track Outdoor table is handcrafted with a tabletop in vibrated concrete combined with table legs in grey lacquered steel. A timeless design which is built to withstand wind and weather in high quality materials of exceptional stability and durability.

Simple yet sophisticated, the Como Outdoor coffee table is created with the same aesthetics and expression as the original indoor version. The simple and elegant coffee table is made of particularly resistant materials — concrete and steel — with a matt surface that stands in beautiful contrast to natural surroundings.

This spring also welcomes the new outdoor version of the Drum coffee tables by kasch. Created with the same materials as the Como Outdoor coffee table, the sizes and shapes can be mixed and matched. The clean lines are minimalist and very modern, while the round shape allows for great versatility.

Fourth and last outdoor launch is the Seed Outdoor chair by Hans Thyge & Co. This new version with or without armrests is created with the same poetically shaped shell, made entirely from recycled plastic. Seed is designed to embrace you with exceptional comfort and support. It is shaped with soft curves that embrace the body, ensuring the same comfort in both indoor and outdoor versions.

Spring brings a new fresh and inspiring energy, which calls for beautiful moments under the sun. The light and sensual design universe of the Bolia Spring Collection clearly refers to the Scandinavian nature and its spring season full of optimistic perspectives. All the pieces are designed by talented designers from around the world who share Bolia's passion for creativity and durability.
