At BOLIA, a table is more than a functional space – it is where conversations unfold, meals are shared, and everyday rituals become memorable moments. Rooted in Scandinavian craftsmanship and timeless design, BOLIA's tableware collection combines tactile materials, elegant silhouettes and thoughtful details to create table settings that feel warm, refined and inviting. This season, the collection welcomes new tones, delicate textiles and sculptural glassware designed to elevate both everyday dining and special occasions.

A timeless collection in a new colour expression

The Forma collection has long been part of BOLIA's tableware universe, celebrated for its understated elegance and refined Scandinavian expression. This season, the collection is introduced in a new colourway, adding fresh depth and warmth to the table setting.

With its soft, organic shapes and balanced proportions, Forma combines functionality with a sculptural aesthetic. The new tone enhances the tactile character of the collection while allowing it to pair naturally with both contemporary and classic interiors.

Designed for everyday use as well as carefully curated dinners, Forma reflects BOLIA's philosophy of timeless design, created to be lived with for years to come.

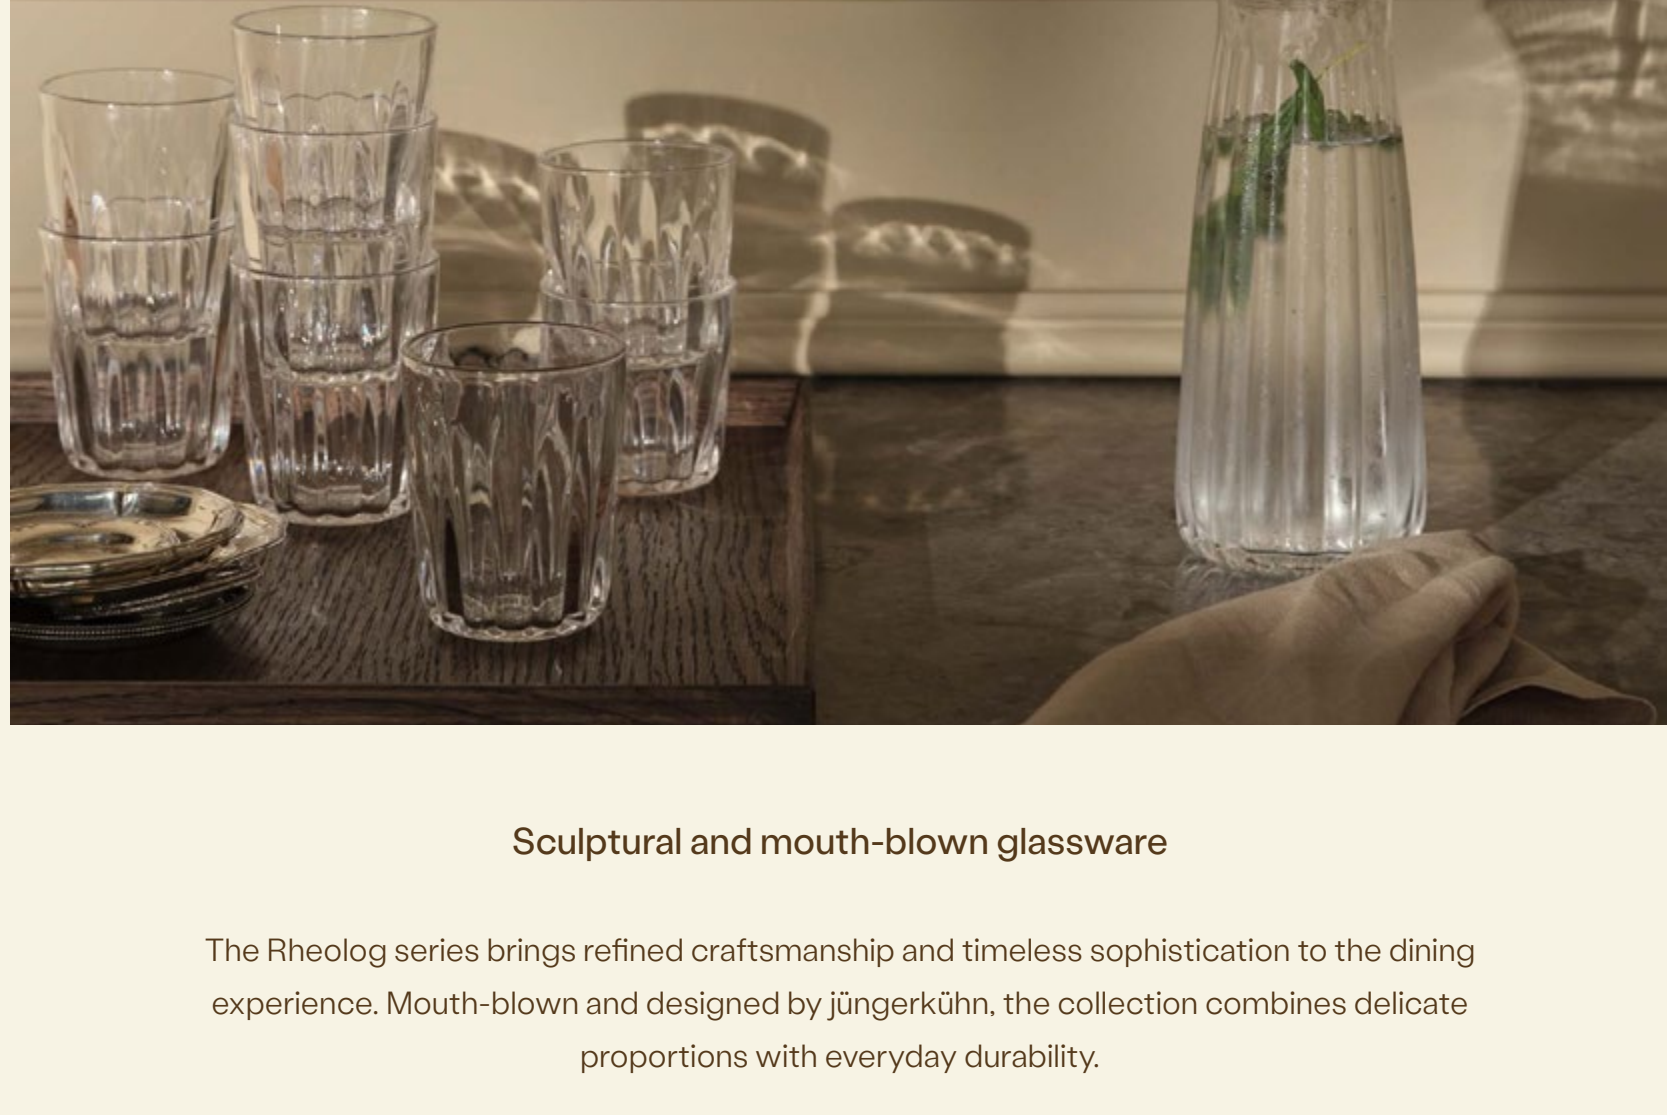

Tablecloths and napkins in natural materials

To create a welcoming dining atmosphere, BOLIA introduces the Soft tablecloth and matching napkins –crafted from premium linen and cotton and designed to bring softness and warmth to the table.

Part of the wider Soft collection, the textiles embody the beauty of calming, understated tones and tactile materials. Certified according to OEKO-TEX® STANDARD 100®*, the collection reflects BOLIA's commitment to quality, comfort and strong craftsmanship.

The relaxed texture and natural drape of the fabrics create an effortless elegance, transforming everyday meals into moments of calm and connection.

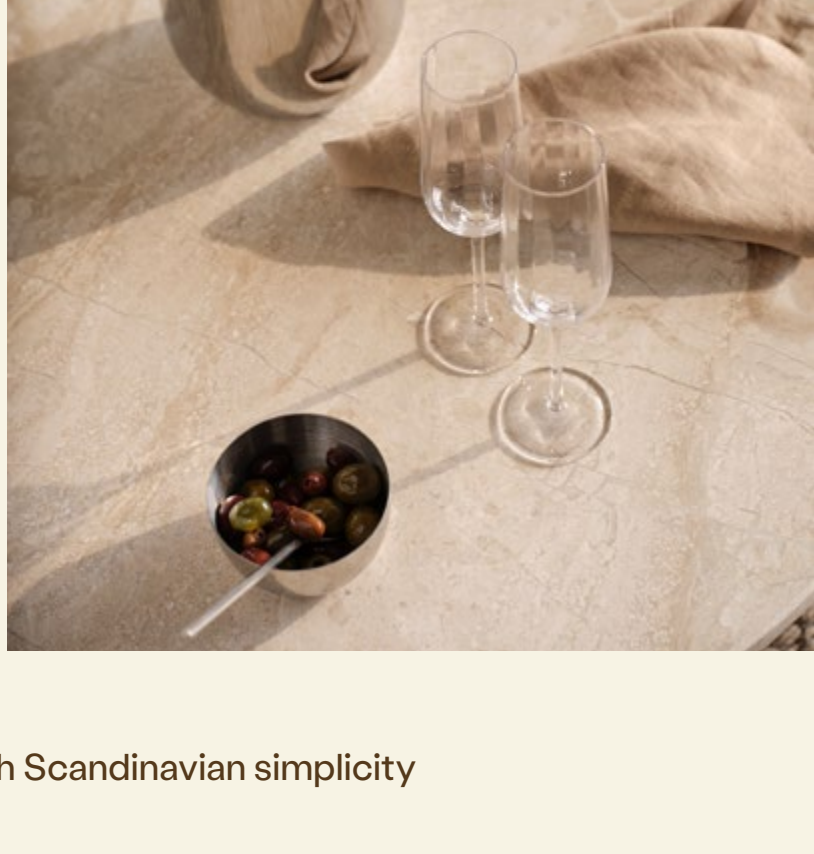

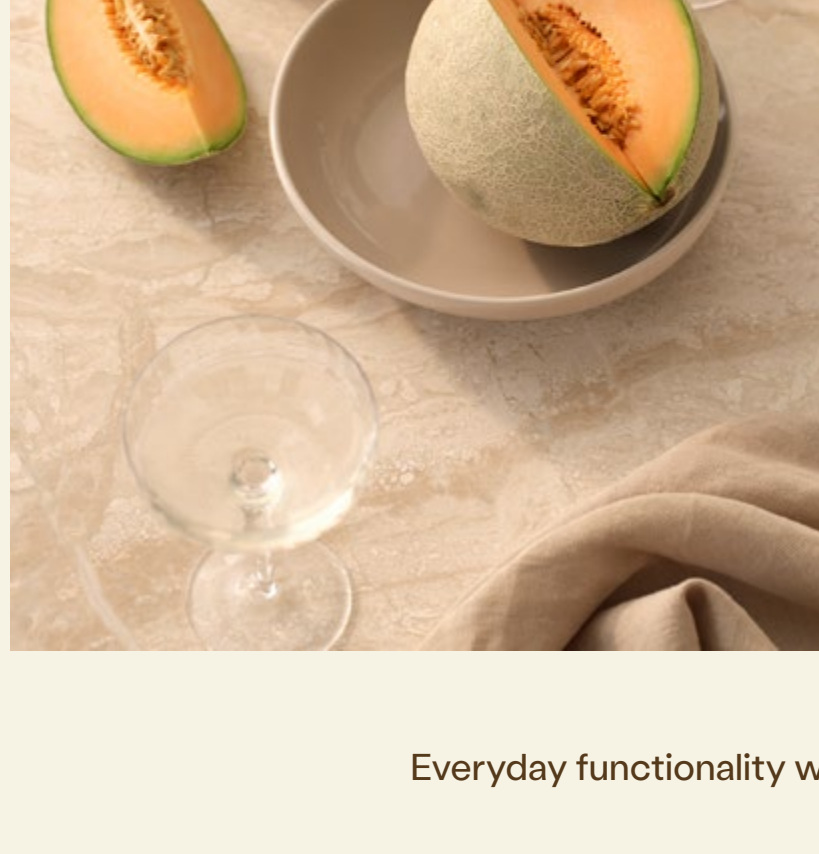

Sculptural and mouth-blown glassware

The Rheolog series brings refined craftsmanship and timeless sophistication to the dining experience. Mouth-blown and designed by jünger kühn, the collection combines delicate proportions with everyday durability.

The range includes elegant drinking glasses and a sculptural carafe, each designed to enhance the experience of serving and sharing. Whether used for water, wine or celebratory moments, Rheolog captures the purity and lightness of Scandinavian glass design.

Its transparent expression and subtle detailing allow the collection to blend seamlessly into both minimalist and richly layered table settings.

Everyday functionality with Scandinavian simplicity

Designed by Ferriani Sbolgi, the new Thea carafe transforms an everyday essential into a refined design object. Inspired by Scandinavian minimalism, its clean silhouette and understated finish make it equally suited for daily use and elegant gatherings.

Like the wider Thea collection, the carafe balances practicality and aesthetics with ease – bringing a sense of quiet sophistication to the table while encouraging more mindful everyday rituals.

A table designed for togetherness

With carefully crafted ceramics, tactile textiles and sculptural glassware, BOLIA's tableware collection celebrates the beauty of slowing down and gathering together.

Every detail is designed to create atmosphere – from the softness of linen napkins to the reflections of mouth-blown glass and the timeless shapes of Scandinavian ceramics. The result is a dining experience that feels both elevated and effortless, designed to accompany meaningful moments for years to come.
