

Three new lighting designs

From Bolia's AW23 Collection: Acorn, Campa & Aluna

The AW23 collection by Bolia welcomes three new lighting designs: the Acorn floor lamp, Campa wall lamp and Aluna pendant. While the three have very distinctive expressions, they are united by the Bolia philosophy: they are timeless pieces, designed to last, that speak to the senses and invite well-being and softness to the home.

Timeless aesthetics, natural materials, and a blend of Scandinavian and Japanese design traditions are three things that characterise the expression of the AW23 collection by Bolia. These key features are reflected in the three new designs, intended to illuminate both private and professional spaces.

The Acorn floor lamp stands out with its eye-catching, organic silhouette. Its slender metal suspension arm adds a touch of sophistication and blends perfectly with its travertine foot and white fabric lampshade, which diffuses a soft light. Subtle details in FSC®-certified oak add a warm touch. The Acorn series is designed by 365° North.

The Campa wall lamp features an elegant lampshade in fluted opal glass. Wooden details provide a striking contrast. Danish architecture studio Spant's idea for the Campa series was to create simple, eye-catching lighting with few components. The silhouette of the lampshade guides the light downward while the translucent opal glass diffuses it with splendor.

The Quaglio Simonelli duo created the Aluna pendant with particular attention to architectural detail. Its elegant shape makes it a focal point in any space. The luxurious expression comes from the iron that makes up the large lampshade, and the subtle brass-covered cord. Inside the dome, an opaque diffuser softens the light while hiding the lightbulbs.
